THANKSGIVING

BY ELIZABETH AKERS ALLEN

(Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association.)

In the pleasant days when we went to school
We read, in a well worn history book,
How, restless under a despot's rule,
A band of pilgrims their land forsook,
And, crossing a wide, mysterious main
To a country strange and little known,
Began, with hardship and toil and pain,
The home and nation we call our own.

The tale rehearsed how they strove with fate,
They and their meek and patient wives,
And rose up early and labored late
To keep and comfort their lonely lives.
They felled the forests with fire and ax,
They dug and planted the rugged soil
And faced denials, and pinching lacks,
And constant danger, and ceaseless toil.

For Nature met them with jealous mood.
She gave scant welcome to human schemes
Which tore the shade from her solitude,
And rent the forests, and dammed the streams.
Her Indian children had never dared
To spoil her shrines and to thwart her will—
The red man's life was her own and shared,
Without a question, her good and ill.

With few of the helps we know today
To yield relief as the seasons rolled,
They paid the price that she bade them pay—
They gasped with heat, and they shook with cold.
The ills she sent them they grimly bore,
Yet none the less did that stubborn band
Hold fast to the stern, unpitying shore
Whereon their vessel had chanced to land—

One summer fiercely and long the sun
Had parched their gardens and scorched their grain,
And days and weeks had gone on and on
With never a sprinkle of saving rain.
The heat drank greedily all the springs
And dried the wheat ere the ears were filled;
It withered the corn to yellow strings,
And all the tenderer crops were killed.

And strongest spirits grew faint indeed,
Foreseeing nothing but want and woe,
Wasting hunger, and bitter need,
And actual famine with winter's snow.
The preachers doubled their sermons' length
And droned long chapters and prayed and prayed.
Yet, spite of their faith's persistent strength,
Was every man of them sore afraid.

But when their courage was almost gone,
So deaf seemed heaven to their prayers and pain,
A cloud arose in the sky at dawn,
Dark and heavy with promised rain.
And when poured plenteously down at last
The crystal blessing denied so long
They changed the day from a gloomy fast
Into a service of joy and song.

And ever after their children, too,
And their children's children after them,
With love and gratitude ever new,
Set one day separate, like a gem
Of purer luster than all the rest
In the golden round of the year of days,
When all might offer, as one, their best
Of true Thanksgiving and humble praise.

So let no spirit, though far apart
From happy fortune its path may stray,
Refuse to honor, with voice and heart,
The dear tradition we keep today.
For never a soul in all the earth,
In hut or palace, in any clime,
But has some blessing or comfort worth
The giving thanks at this joyful time.

We who are happy, whose lot is crowned
With every favor that life can bring,
How can we fail, as the day comes round,
To offer thanks, to rejoice and sing?
We who are wretched, whose days are dark,
Void of all that can bless or cheer,
May still be glad, as its dawn we mark,
That rest and freedom are almost here.

For grain bins brimming with amber wheat,
And all the riches of harvest born;
For laden hives, with their burden sweet;
For heaps of fruits and for golden corn;
For bursting cotton and warming fleece;
For bleating flocks and for milky herds;
For home, for comfort, for thrift, for peace,
For kindly hands and for loving words;

For all the gifts of the teeming earth;
For every blessing the autumn sends;
For love, for pleasure, for tears, for mirth,
For faithful hearts and for loyal friends;
For household circles still fond and whole,
Let every one in his own best way,
With grateful thought and with humble soul,
Yield thanksgiving and praise today!

A Greek Devil Belief.

The Greek conception of their devil, whom they call Yama, makes that personage one of the most satanic of the whole devil tribe. According to their ideas of him, he is 240 miles high and the hairs on his body stand out like palm trees on a mountain side. He punishes the doomed beings submitted to his charge by putting them in beds of boiling oil, sawing their bodies in two, pouring molten lead in their ears and such other little pranks as pulling out their tongues, toe and finger nails and gouging out their eyes. He is a heartless old devil of the most devilish kind and has many other exquisite little tortures laid up for the helpless wretch consigned to his "chamber of horrors."—St. Louis Republic.

A SOLDIER'S THANKSGIVING.

BY LIEUTENANT THIGG.

[Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association.]

We started to dig our way out of the prison pen at Salisbury, N. C., on the 2d day of August, 1863. There were five of us, all of whom had been captured at the same time, and we reached the prison in May.

In all prison pens the inmates paired off at least, and in many instances four, five or six men formed a sort of close corporation. All clothing, blankets, money and other articles went into a common fund, and the men shared alike in the comforts and discomforts. It so happened that none of us was despoiled when captured, and on entering the gates of Salisbury we had $90 in cash, each a good blanket and a full uniform, and we were thus enabled to live in far greater comfort than the great majority. We had a choice of ground on which to pitch our tent, and having an eye to a tunnel we got as near the dead line and the fence as possible. The distance to the dead line was 6 feet and to the fence about 23.

Up to this time a score of prisoners had escaped by means of tunnels, and dozens of tunnels had been discovered while being dug. The Confederates entered the pen almost daily through the months of June, July, August and September and made a close search for diggers. Such vigilance acted to discourage the prisoners, and I believe our tunnel was the only one begun in the month of October. Our tent was a roomy one, and we began operations, sinking a shaft five feet deep and large enough to allow a man to work in. This hole was in the middle of our tent, and when not in use was covered with four sticks and a blanket. All the dirt was carried away in our pockets and flung into abandoned wells or scattered over the ground. A spoon, the two halves of a canteen and the handles of a skillet were our tools for digging. As we had noticed that every visit of the searchers was made in the afternoon or evening, we began and prosecuted our work in the forenoon. After a couple of weeks some digging was made after 10 o'clock at night, but we never felt safe while thus engaged. When the tunnel proper was begun, two men were working at the same time below ground. A third stood watch at the door, and the fourth and fifth carried away the dirt.

The tunnel was three feet below the surface and but a trifle larger than a man's body. The digger had to pull himself in by using his elbows, and he drew after him a tin basin and a string. The dirt was placed in the basin and drawn out by the man in the shaft. Crawling into a hollow log is fun compared to wriggling in and out of such a tunnel. The body shuts out all the air, the place is stifling hot, and after half an hour's work the strongest man is used up.

When our tunnel had reached the fence, we had to go down four feet to work under the ends of the logs, and the air became so foul that we made but slow headway and some days did not work at all. We had planned to run the tunnel close to the dispensary, and after passing the fence the digging became easier, but delay from one cause or another prevented the completion of our enterprise until the 20th of November. At noon of that date we had dug our full distance and had only to break through a foot of crust to be in the open air outside the fence. We must wait for night, of course. The weather was fine, with a promise of a starlight night, but during the afternoon we made all our arrangements to go. Twice during the afternoon alarms were given that searching parties were coming in, but they proved to be false. Night finally came with our plan undetected, and about 8 o'clock the first of the five entered the tunnel, crept to the far end and broke through the crust. We had dug within 12 inches of the wall of the dispensary. The building was used as sleeping quarters for two or three men connected with the hospital department, and as we passed out of the tunnel in turn each of us heard them talking and moving about. Each man crept away to the left, climbed over a fence and followed it for 20 rods, and then made for a certain tree which could be seen from the stockade and which had been agreed upon as the rendezvous. We encountered no guards and raised no alarm, and within half an hour from the time the first man entered the tunnel the five of us were gathered under the tree.

We traveled all night, with only brief stops for rest, and when daylight came we judged that we had made a good 25 miles. We had followed the highway on and off, but without encountering any one, and as the day broke we sought the cover of a thicket and lay down to rest and sleep. It was afternoon before any one awoke, and then the first move was to look for water. We soon found that, and then the question of food came up. Keeping all together, we moved to the west, knowing that we should come to a plantation sooner or later. The best we could do in the way of weapons was for each man to arm himself with a club. The highway was on our left as we went forward, and we had proceeded for about a mile when we broke out of the cover of a thicket and found ourselves upon the road, which took a turn there to avoid a hill. It was only a narrow road, and a couple of jumps would have given us cover on the other side, but as we left the bushes we came face to face with a soldier in Confederate uniform. He was sitting down on a stone to rest and was without weapons of any sort. Had the soldier remained quiet a tragedy would have been avoided. At first sight of us he sprang to his feet, and instead of running away when he recognized us as escaped prisoners, which I am sure he did, he called on us to surrender and seized a man with each hand. He was only a boy, being less than 20 years old, and not having even a pistol with him it was a foolhardy thing for him to do. Having a brave heart in him, he acted on impulse. The idea with all of us was that we had blundered upon a party of soldiers sent out in search, and no one hesitated to use his club.

It was only after the young soldier had gone down under our blows that we found he was alone and unarmed. Two men lifted up his body and bore it into a thicket across the road, and when at a safe distance we examined his injuries and did all that was possible under the circumstances to revive him. Some of the blows had fractured his skull, and at the end of two hours he was dead. When I tell you that we were sorely grieved over the matter, I do not half express our feelings. In one sense we had the moral and legal right to attack him and defend ourselves, but when we saw him lying dead we could not help but feel that there was innocent blood on our hands. On an envelope in his pocket was his name, George Williamson, and he also had with him a ten days' furlough, granted by the commander of the post at Salisbury nine days before. He was one of the guards at the prison pen, then, and had been home on a furlough and was making his way back.

We found a spot where a tree had been overturned and buried the body as well as we could, and during the remainder of the day no one seemed to think of food. As night came we started on again, but we had not made a distance of ten miles when a comrade named Clark caught his foot and twisted his ankle in a way to render him perfectly helpless. There was no thought of going on without him. After scouting around and finding that we were in the woods half a mile from the highway and at least a mile from any cleared field, we erected a rude shelter and prepared to wait until Clark could proceed with us. The next day we got some corn from a field two miles away and parched it over a small fire, and later on we captured several opossums, killed a pig, which was running wild, and knocked over and devoured three or four crows and pronounced them excellent eating. Thanksgiving day found us still there, though Clark was getting the better of his injury, and we hoped to make a start next morning. Our dinner was ready at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and consisted of a roasted crow, three sweet potatoes and a cake made of meal and water. The meal had been stolen from a negro shanty three miles away during the previous afternoon. Perhaps "taken" would be the better term, as one of the men went to the shanty to beg for something and found no one at home.

The five of us sat in a circle eating this Thanksgiving dinner when a stranger suddenly appeared among us. That he was a native could be told at a glance, and that he was the owner of the nearest farm on the west we soon ascertained. He was out hunting, and had been led to us by his dog. He knew in a moment that we were Union soldiers who had "cut stick," and he must have been cognizant of the fact that there was a standing reward of $50 for the capture of any prisoner seeking to make his escape. For a long time no one spoke. The man leaned on his rifle and looked down on us, and as we gazed at him each one of us felt that we were helpless. By and by he queried:

"WILL YOU GIVE US YOUR NAME?"

"Any one of yo' bin sick?"

We told him that Clark had sprained his ankle, and that we had been camped there for several days.

"Heaps o' soldiers bin lookin out fur yo'," he said, "and it's a wonder yo' dodged 'em. Do yo' know what day 'tis?"

"Yes. Thanksgiving."

"And is that yo'r dinner?"

"Yes."

"Well, I reckon I kin do better than that fur yo'. Jist stop right yere and don't be anxious, and I'll bring yo' some grub from the house."

He was gone before we could question him. We believed that he had gone for help instead of food, but if we started off we could not hope to evade pursuit with Clark as a burden on us. We talked it over and concluded that it might as well be surrender without an effort, and we were feeling gloomy enough when the man returned. To our surprise he was alone and had a basket on his arm and a jug in his hand. The basket contained meat, bread, pickles, pie and other good things, and the jug held cider. He placed them before us and said:

"Boys, I don't know who yo' are. I shall never own up that I ever saw yo'. The s'arch for yo' is now about over, and I reckon yo'd better move slowly on by tomorrer."

"But why do you do this for an enemy?" was asked.

"I hev no enemies on Thanksgiving day!" he replied as he uncovered his head. "Besides I've got a son who is a soldier. War' he in the hands of his enemies on this day I should hope fur them to treat him as I treat yo'."

"Will you give us your name?"

"James Williamson, and my boy ar' named George! He was home on furlough a few days ago, but has gone back to the prison pen. I shan't see yo' agin. Jest leave the basket and jug alongside the tree, and I'll get 'em tomorrer. Good luck to yo'."

We sat there staring into each other's faces and never thanked him nor said goodby. We could not speak for several minutes after the sound of his footsteps had died out of our ears. It was his son—his soldier boy—we had encountered on the highway and killed—his son lying dead in a shallow grave in the forest a few miles away! We had slain his only child perhaps, and he repaid us with food and succor and kind words! No man touched food or drink. No man felt hunger or thirst. We sat there for an hour, silent and conscience stricken and even tearful, and then we got up and moved away on our journey and made no halt for miles and miles. Long weeks after that two ragged, starving and wounded Union prisoners entered the Federal lines in Tennessee, but only two. The other three of our party were dead on the mountains or in the valley—dead without burial. Fate had demanded three lives for one.

Huxley Chaffs Tyndall.

Tyndall was, I think, one of the earliest members of the Alpine club, but he seceded after an unfortunate dispute, which arose in connection with his own successful attempts on the Matterhorn and Mr. Whymper's ascent of that peak, and it was not till three or four years before his death that he again attended one of the annual dinners of the club, where he and Professor Huxley were among the guests of the evening.

Both orated, but in the particular art of after dinner speaking Tyndall was not the equal of his brilliant rival, and his labored and rather egotistical utterances contrasted unfavorably with the delicate persiflage of Huxley, who, by the way, chaffed him unmercifully on that occasion as being one of the goats and not one of the sheep—the goats who climbed the arid rocks, while the sheep, among whom Huxley reckoned himself, browsed contentedly on the rich pastures below.—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Childs Mansion.

Wootton, the magnificent country house of the late George W. Childs, is to be torn down. Such is the intention of its owner, George W. Childs Drexel, who intends to erect on its site a larger and much more magnificent structure. This was the favorite residence of the late philanthropist, and it was there that he dispensed his superb hospitality to the salt of the earth. In that house, it is safe to say, more people of renown have been entertained than in any other private residence in the United States. The house itself is a splendid creation of the architect's genius. Allied in style to the country habitations of the nobility of England, its surroundings of lawn and garden and farm are in full accord.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorized to announce the name of W. F. Bookwith, of Farmers Valley, Pa., as a candidate for the office of Supervisor of Keating township, subject to the decision of the Republican caucus.

THE Rev. Samuel Francis Smith, author of "America", died at his home in Boston, Mass., last Saturday, at a very advanced age.

LAST Thursday a week at Atlanta, Ga., on Pennsylvania day, Governor Hastings delivered an address that must have been a great surprise to the southern people, telling them of the wonderful resources of our great commonwealth. Pennsylvania in the union of states is the grandest of them all. She is self sustaining. There is nothing that is needed for the maintenance of the human race within her border but what she is abundantly able to supply. The statistics that our executive presented on the above occasion are beyond comparison by any other state in the union. Our churches and schools are away ahead of those of any other state. Our industries lead them all, and we have reason to feel proud of the Keystone State. She has always been in the fore front as regards protection, hence she stands at the head of the sisterhood of states to-day a monument of glory in the galaxy of states that make our common union. The seeds of good government that were planted on the banks of the Delaware in 1682 by William Penn have taken deep root and have finally branched out until they reach to the uttermost bounds of the State. The little settlement started at that remote date was destined to have more influence in shaping the events of history and the future welfare and happiness of more people than any other place in the known world. Ninety four years after Penn landed in the wilderness a bell on the western bank of the Delaware sent forth its peal announcing to the world in tones not to be mistaken that three million people had determined to be free and govern themselves according to the dictates of their own consciences. The peal of that great bell has had its fruits, until seventy million people, instead of three millions rejoice at its sound and our domain has grown so large that like England our boast is that the sun never sets on "Uncle Sam's territory. She is the Keystone State the arch of the constellation of stars that form our union the polar star of states around which the others circle and are held in place, as a guide to keep them in their proper sphere. If the other states of our great union had always presented such a breast-work for protection and fostering care of our industries as Pennsylvania has always upheld our nation would not be on the verge of poverty, so to speak as it is at the present time, but our whole land would be teeming with prosperity. The industrial hum of the factory would be heard all over our great country, instead of silent factories on every hand. The statistics presented by our great Governor should open the eyes of other states to the advantages derived by Pennsylvania from her inherent love of "Patriotism, Protection and Prosperity."

THE PRESIDENT'S OPPORTUNITY

Almost any man occupying the position of President of the United States who has been holding such firm views on free trade, would naturally get off from his hobby and try some other measure, after three such overwhelming defeats as his party has sustained in the last three years. His eyes ought to be opened by this time to the fact that the popular will of the people is strongly against his views, and he ought to take a tumble to the fact and strive to meet Congress at least half-way in devising some plan to relieve the distressed condition of the country. If the President would say in his next message to Congress, "Gentlemen, if you can devise some plan that will relieve the strained business condition of the land I will be willing to sign any measure that will have a tendency to lift this pall of business depression that is resting upon our country. If the chief executive could be induced to open his eyes sufficiently to take in the situation as it really exists, he would see at a glance that he is traveling in the wrong direction. Will he have sufficient love of country and patriotism to acknowledge that he has made a mistake and at the eleventh hour turn and assist Congress in its efforts to pass some law that will relieve this distress? It lies with the President in his coming message to Congress to define his position. If he is inclined to assist in this matter he has yet an opportunity of eradicating some of the odium that rests upon him for his persistent efforts to have a more thorough free-trade with foreign countries. He was not satisfied with the Wilson-Gorman bill, its free-trade tendencies were not rigid enough to suit him. The people of the country in 1894 and 1895 have set their seal upon it and condemned it in tones not to be mistaken. Will the President heed the popular verdict and say he was mistaken, and instead of trying to lead Congress, say that he will follow and aid and assist in restoring confidence? Will Cleveland be able to take higher ground? It is to be hoped he will. He should look back to his first term, when a Republican Congress kept him in check and his head above water. But when he had a Congress with his own views (the 53d) the whole posse went down in a deluge of free-trade, like Pharaoh's hosts in the Red Sea. This lesson should teach the President that a good Republican majority in Congress on the other end of the "see saw" is for his safety, if he will work in conjunction with them.

Little Boy Blue.

The little toy dog is covered with dust,
But sturdy and staunch he stands;
And the little toy soldier is red with rust,
And his musket moulds in his hands.
Time was when the little toy dog was new,
And the soldier was passing fair,
And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue
Kissed them and put them there.

"Now, don't you go till I come," he said,
"And don't you make any noise!"
So toddling off to his trundle-bed
He dreamt of the pretty toys.
And as he was dreaming, an angel song
Awakened our Little Boy Blue—
Oh, the years are many, the years are long,
But the little toy friends are true.

Aye, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand,
Each in the same old place,
Awaiting the touch of a little hand,
The smile of a little face.
And they wonder, as waiting these long years through,
In the dust of that little chair,
What has become of our Little Boy Blue
Since he kissed them and put them there.

An Archbishop's Absentmindedness.

A correspondent writes: "The stories of absentmindedness might be supplemented by the following instance in the life of Archbishop Trench. Dining at home one evening he found fault with the flavor of the soup. Next evening he dined out at a large dinner party. Forgetting for the moment that he was not in his own house, but a guest, he observed across the table to Mrs. Trench, 'This soup is, my dear, again a failure.'"—Westminster Gazette.

Franklin, Sept. 18. The will of the late Mrs. Clara T. H. Eaton, widow of Dr. [illegible] Eaton, deceased, has been filed in the register and recorder's office for probate. The document, which is a very lengthy one, covers two pages of closely written manuscript, and in it is contained several charitable bequests. It was executed December 1, 1892, and Elizabeth C. Eaton and Thomas [illegible] were appointed executors. All the household furniture and fixtures is bequeathed to relatives and friends. [illegible] Halliday of Chicago. To the testatrix's sister, Louisa T. Medberry, [illegible] bond is bequeathed. [illegible] hundred and fifty dollars and an interest in the Mechanics' Savings Bank at Rochester is bequeathed to Elizabeth C. Eaton. One half of one hundred and sixty acres in [illegible] county, Florida, is given Adella M. [illegible]. The other half is left Clara [illegible]. Five hundred dollars is bequeathed to Mrs. Nannie F. Irwin of Jacksonville, Florida. A house, all its contents and a lot on Terrace avenue, Chautauqua, N. Y., is left Clara M. Irwin, and a house, all its contents, on Simpson avenue at the same resort, is bequeathed to Elizabeth C. Eaton and sister Louisa Medberry. To Clara H. [illegible] is left the sum of $[illegible]. The charitable bequests are: The proceeds from the sale of the dwellings in which the testatrix occupied until the time of her death and the lot, also that derived from the sale of a house and lot in Melbourne, Brevard county, Fla., which is ordered to be sold, is to be divided equally between the Board of Disabled Ministers and Home Missions. All theological works and works that Elizabeth C. Eaton does not wish to keep for her library are given to the Western Theological Seminary of Allegany City, Pa. To Washington and Jefferson College is left Craft's history of the Indians and a cabinet of shells and petrifactions. Five hundred dollars is left to the Franklin cemetery, the interest on same to keep up the testator's lot. [illegible] February 18, 1895, [illegible] Robert [illegible] in Brevard county, Fla., is bequeathed to Elizabeth C. Eaton. When the cottage on Simpson avenue, Chautauqua, is sold the proceeds are to be divided equally between Mrs. L. F. Medberry and Elizabeth C. Eaton.

When the Chill Mists of the Morning

Hang like a pall over the surface of the earth, it will be well for you before venturing into the raw vaporous air, charged, perhaps, with the seeds of malaria or provocative of rheumatic twinges, to take a wineglassful of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and thus shield yourself from atmospheric influences threatening to health. If you happen to get snowed, sleeted or rained upon, use the same preventive, and avoid the rheumatism or a dangerous cold. The agreeable warmth infused into the circulation by this genial stomachic, its invigorating and regulating properties commend it to all appreciative of the fact that prevention is better than cure. Use the Bitters for dyspepsia, biliousness, nervousness and kidney trouble, sick headache and debility.

Mr. Geo. L. Smith of the Geo. L. Smith Mantel Co., Louisville, Ky., writes Feb. 28, 1894: "For about a year I was a terrible sufferer from heart trouble, which got so bad I was obliged to sit up in bed to get my breath. I had to abandon business and could hardly crawl around. My friend, Mr. Julius C. Voght, one of our leading pharmacists, asked me to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I had used little more than a bottle when the pain ceased and palpitations entirely disappeared. I have not had the slightest trouble since, and today I am attending to business as regularly as ever."

BOROUGH ORDINANCE.

AN ORDINANCE PROHIBITING THE RIDING OF BICYCLES ON THE SIDEWALKS OF THE BOROUGH OF SMETHPORT, FIXING THE PENALTIES FOR THE VIOLATION THEREOF, AND PRESCRIBING A MODE OF COLLECTION OF SUCH PENALTIES.

Be it ordained and enacted by the Burgess and Council of the Borough of Smethport, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same that from and after the passage of this ordinance no person, male or female, shall ride a bicycle on any stone or plank sidewalk in the Borough of Smethport, and the riding of bicycles by any person on said sidewalk or sidewalks is hereby declared to be unlawful.

And the Burgess, High Constable, or any Constable of the Borough of Smethport is hereby authorized and empowered to arrest upon view, or upon warrant duly issued, any person violating this ordinance, and take the offender before the Burgess or any Justice of the Peace of said Borough, who shall proceed to hear and determine the cause in a summary manner. And any person who shall upon such hearing be found guilty of the violation of this ordinance shall be sentenced by the said Burgess or Justice of the Peace as the case may be to pay a fine of TWO DOLLARS and costs of prosecution, and in default of the payment thereof, to be imprisoned in the Borough lock up not exceeding twenty-four hours.

All ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Passed by unanimous vote of Council this 2d day of September, 1895.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

—"Maloney's Mishaps" tonight.

—See change in Dr. Chadwick's card.

—Our Borough Fathers evidently love darkness.

—Mercury was down to 17 degrees Thursday morning.

—If you have anything worth selling it is worth advertising.

—M. L. Armstrong has put a new floor in his jewelry store.

—If ever there was a town that needed a perpetual sun it is Smethport.

—Comrade Wright has had a new sidewalk laid on Main street in front of his property.

—Pat Culls new boarding house near the depot at Eldred presents a very tasty appearance.

—Chas Welsh has his new building at Eldred finished and his billiard parlor is a very attractive place.

—Get in your holiday advertisements.

—Andrew McCabe is engaged in building an addition to his new house on Marvin street.

—Holmes and Gilfillan have just roofed a new lumber shed 12 feet wide and 150 feet long.

—Mat Snyder, of Port Allegany, has taken possession of the New Palmer Hotel at Olean.

—Mrs. T. D. Nash has been putting repairs on the awning in front of her millinery store.

—Have you read the advertisements this week? If not, look them all over; they read like a book.

—Mrs. John Taylor has been quite ill for some time past, but at this writing is thought to be a trifle better.

—J. L. Smith, of Norwich Corners, dislocated his right wrist last Saturday night. Dr Chadwick attended the case.

—Lime and Duryea have purchased the old "Bee Hive" at Eldred and are fitting it up for a carriage and blacksmith shop.

—Mrs E. J. Robinson, of Ormsby, presented her husband with a bouncing baby boy Tuesday of this week. 11½ lbs.

—Mrs J. H. McCandless is acting as organist at St. Luke's church and handles the large instrument with great taste and ability.

—With defective and dangerous walks, every person who ventures out after 7 p. m. is liable to be brought home on a stretcher.

—This week's Autograph reports a fire at Austin whereby three dwelling houses were destroyed, aggregating a loss of $3,000.

—The father of Mrs. Thomas Clark, of Austin, died last Sunday at his home in Clinton, N. Y. Mrs. Clark is well known in Smethport.

—If our council cannot devise some way to light the streets at night, they should see that the walks are fixed safe for pedestrians.

—A meeting of the McKean Co. Agricultural & Breeders society was held in the court house yesterday. Full particulars next week.

—Our advertisers are right in line this week. There are so many changes and space is so limited that we are unable to make special mention.

—By all means let the streets remain in darkness until some one breaks a leg or arm, and the borough has to pay a good round sum in damages.

—What has become of our foot ball team? Come boys "get busy" and arrange a game for Thanksgiving day if only between local elevens.

—Albert Baker, of Kane, was arrested Monday, says the Republican, on the charge of adultery. Admitted to bail in the sum of $500, for appearance at court.

—Union Thanksgiving services will be held at the Baptist church in this place next Wednesday morning at 10:30. Rev. J. W. Sanborn will deliver the sermon.

—We are glad to learn that Rev. Father J. J. Galligan, who is in the Sisters' Hospital, at Buffalo, is improving and with careful nursing will pull through.

—The popular Irish comedian, Joe J. Sullivan and his company of clever comedians will present the up-to-time comedy, "Maloney's Mishaps," at the opera house to-night.

—A barn belonging to Marion Thornton, of Bradford was burned Monday night. Mr. Thornton, in trying to get his horse out, was severely burned. Loss about $1000.

—Owing to the fact that our first page was given up to Thanksgiving matter this week, we were obliged to leave out the story, "A Set of Rogues," but will start in again next week.

—Orcutt & Vredenberg, the upholsterers are having their hands full. They are turning out jobs which for beauty of finish and evident durability are equal to new at less than one half the cost.

—The three young men who were damaging property and making night hideous with their wild howls on Tuesday evening of last week, will probably keep quiet hereafter "while the dance goes on."

—Rhetorical exercises will take place in the High School room on Wednesday, Nov. 27, at 2:30 p. m. Pupils from the various departments will take part in these exercises. All are cordially invited to attend.

—On Wednesday we received a well-written account of the death of Mrs. Geo. W. Pelton, but owing to the crowded condition of our columns we are compelled to leave it until next week, when it will be published in full.

—The jury in the Weston vs. Glen Hazel Gas Company case were out from Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock until Sunday morning at nine o'clock without being able to come to an agreement when Judge Morrison discharged them.

—The MINER in stating that the doors of the school building are not opened until 9 o'clock, has been misinformed. The doors are opened at 10 minutes before 9 o'clock and all students are expected to be in their seats ready for work at 9 o'clock.

—The Union church at Ormsby will be dedicated by appropriate services next Sunday afternoon and evening. Three reverend gentlemen will attend: Crocker, of Mt Alton, Zahnizer, of Bradford and Jones, Clarion. All are cordially invited to attend.

—There has been a number of complaints made about the young boys of our town throwing stones and breaking windows in churches. It is to be hoped that they will discontinue this malicious mischief, as it does them no good and only tends to lower them in their own estimation as well as in the estimation of all respectable people.

—The many friends of Alba Gilfillan were very much shocked when the news reached here Monday that he was one of the unfortunates in the street car catastrophe at Cleveland last Sunday night. Along toward night more reliable news was received which stated that he was not in the wreck, for which his friends are truly thankful.

—Andrew Reilly displayed the proper spirit last week during the dark nights. He hung two lanterns to trees along the street in front of his residence. They were not as brilliant as electric lights, but they helped materially in navigating around in that locality. It would be advisable for some more of our citizens to hang out a light occasionally.

—A representative of the MINER called on Mr. Helms in the General Hospital, Buffalo, on Wednesday last and found that gentleman in a very hopeful frame of mind. The first of the week Dr. Putnam, a nerve specialist, made a thorough examination, and as a result Mr. Helms' treatment has been entirely changed and has been put on six meals a day, consisting wholly of nerve food. With the present treatment and nerve tonic Dr. Putnam expects to get him out in a few weeks.

—Workmen are busy erecting the new depot at Eldred last Saturday they were placing the foundation timbers.

—If our borough council would get as full as the moon does occasionally, they would readily see the need of having our streets lighted.

—Mrs. E. C. Combs who lives on the cemetery road toward Crosby, presented her husband with a fine baby girl last Friday. All are doing well.

—On Thanksgiving day at St. Luke's church the services will be at 10:30 a. m. when the usual festival music will be sung by the chorus and the old familiar hymns.

—In the proper place will be found the name of W. P. Beckwith, of Farmers Valley announcing himself as candidate for supervisor on the Republican ticket. Mr. Beckwith would make an exceptionally good man for the position, having filled the place once before, and experience is what a man needs in the management of roads.

—Joe J. Sullivan, in "Maloney's Mishaps," presented a rather original and ludicrous type of the stage Hibernian, and had only to open his mouth to provoke a laugh. The other members of the combination were all first-class in their specialties. This promises to be a booming week at the Howard.—Boston Herald.

—The Potter Enterprise has been for some time printing cuts of prominent men of Potter county. Last week's issue contained a fine cut of Leon E. Larrabee, a rising and prominent young attorney, son of the late Hon. D. C. Larrabee. Leon is one of those fortunate men who have the faculty of making every one their friend, a blessing that very few enjoy.

—The Smethport Hose Co., managed to just about make expenses on their fair last week. If any organization deserves the support of the people it is this one. The promptness with which they responded to the alarm Tuesday evening plainly shows that, in spite of financial difficulties, they are always on hand when needed. Now is the time to go to work and help the boys out.

—Last Sunday morning one of Mr. Brown's livery teams at Mt. Jewett was hired by a party, name unknown. They started toward Smethport, and on arriving at the Hazelhurst crossing, the team became frightened at something, upsetting the buggy and running away. Two of Mr. Brown's men came here Sunday night, but nothing had been heard of the team.

—The MINER respectfully suggests the name of B. L. Knapp for Justice of the Peace at the coming election. Mr. Knapp has made an able and efficient officer, and has conducted his office in a highly commendable manner. We know whereof we speak, having kept a close watch on Mr. Knapp's action while in office. There is no justice's office more properly conducted than the one presided over by B. L. Knapp.

—The Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg R. R., will run an excursion to Buffalo on Wednesday, Nov., 27. Tickets good for three days. Trains leave Bradford at 7:45 a. m. and at 3:15 p. m., fare for round trip $1 50. This is a splendid opportunity to visit the Queen city. One of the many attractions at Buffalo on Thanksgiving day will be the foot ball game between Lancaster and St Bonaventure for the championship of western New York.

—We have received tickets to attend Ye Olde Folks' concert to be given at the opera house on ye 27th daye of November, under the able management of Mrs. J. W. Sanborn. Do not fail to attend as this will be one of the most attractive entertainments given here this year. The singers will be dressed in the costumes in vogue during the revolutionary period and that feature alone will be worth enjoying. Then the old songs of long ago, with all their stirring memories, will carry us back in memory to our boyhood and girlhood days, that will repay us all. Come ye one and all to the musical feast.

—A rather amusing incident, which showed the proverbial Irish wit, ready on all ocassions, occurred last Saturday in the court room. Mr. Mullin counsel for the Glen Hazel Gas Company in summing up the case had scored Mr. Weston, prosecutor in the case, unmercifully. Mr. Higgins in summing up for the prosecution, referred to Mr. Mullin's tirade against Mr. Weston and said he had accused Mr. Weston of almost every crime except murder, and turning to counsel for defense, said he did not know but Mr. Mullin would accuse him of that. "I do," said Mr. Mullin, "he killed his case."

—It is reported that a party of engineers are engaged in surveying a new route from Hazelhurst and making an effort to get to Clermont by going up Bloomster hollow. A little inducement from this place, if properly applied, might be the means of prevailing upon the party in charge of the new route to continue on to Smethport. We make an earnest appeal to our energetic business men to unite upon some means of reviving the business interests of our pleasant little town. Something ought to be done. We have as bright business talent as any other town, which if united for the common good and the advancement of our business interest, would accomplish much.

—We present our readers this week with another of Mr. Fields poems, "The Little Boy Blue." There is hardly a family in the land but will fully appreciate this touching sentiment. Many families have their little ones at home, and enjoy the pleasure of seeing their loved ones bidding their toys good night as they go to roam in "Slumber Land." Others have the toys but the owners have gone far away out into the world to make homes of their own, and have "little boy blues" to buy toys for. While others have the toys, but the little ones have bidden adieu to the joys of earth, and gone to their final reward. The sentiment is beautiful and will be fully appreciated by every fond mother and father.

—This issue closes our second year in the management of the MINER. Our hope is that you are satisfied with the paper we have furnished you. Our aim has been to please the majority of our readers. No paper can be truthful without occasionly rolling a stone upon some body's toes and hurting their feelings, but it has been done with the best of intentions, to influence the unwary to a better course, and not with malice. To the many friends who have assisted us in securing news and other matters of interest we are truly thankful, and hope they will continue to aid us in securing the most interesting newsy matter to be obtained. There are a great many on our mailing list who are two years in arrears. We ask those to see to it that we start the new year on an even basis. Look at the label on your MINER and you will readily see how far you are in arrears. The longer you allow the matter to run the larger the account grows. Send in your remittance and encourage us to renewed efforts in giving you a bright, newsy home paper.

—Last Tuesday Evening at about 7:30 o'clock, considerable excitement was created by the fire alarm sounding. The hose boys started for their headquarters and soon had their cart out going down Water street at a terrific rate of speed. Owing to the darkened condition of our streets, it was a long time before an ordinary person was able to discover the incipient blaze that was causing so much trouble. At last it was made out to be an old ice house belonging to William Hamer. The flames had made such headway that it was impossible to save the structure and it burned to the ground. It made some excitement while it lasted and gave more light than has been seen in town for many a long and weary night.

—The Chicago Timberman of Nov. 9, contains among its many other good things an excellent description of a "Modern Southern Mill Plant," known as the J. J. Newman Lumber Company, of Hattiesburg Miss. J. J. Newman is president; L. S. Brown, of Buffalo is secretary and treasurer; W. M. Dunbar, vice president and mill manager; Owen Charles, superintendent of planing mill and dry kiln and Mike Dunn, superintendent of railroads and all out-of-door work. All but Mr Brown are well and favorably known to many readers of the MINER. They are all practical lumbermen and well versed in all details appertaining thereto. Their new railroad is but just started, but it can continue in a straight course through pine timber of the finest growth for a distance of 40 miles. Their new mill is 50x150 in size, and two stories high. Three immense boilers furnish the motive power to carry on the great works here established. The latest and most modern improvements known to lumbermen are used here to facilitate the handling of the great quantities of lumber manufactured each day. The lumber is all planed, dried, sized and matched, if desired. To give some idea of machinery when properly applied—70 men is all that is required to handle the 80 000 feet manufactured each day. This means taking the logs from the pond and going through the various processes until the lumber is loaded on the cars. Mr. Newman and his co-workers have devoted much time and hard study in order to make this as nearly a perfect machine for the manufacture and finishing of lumber as human ingenuity and skill could accomplish. If space allowed we should be pleased to devote more time to this subject. Their protection against fire is as near perfect as it can be made. Sprinklers will be placed in all parts of the yards to make it still more secure. This great plant is an assured fact; it is founded on a good solid basis. Brain work has been the main factor in its conception, and the latter combined with labor and a determination to succeed cannot help but be crowned with success that the enterprise is deserving of.

Tours to The Golden Gate and Florida via Pennsylvania Railroad.

That the public are quick to recognize the advantages of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's perfect personally-conducted tourist system is exemplified by the annual increase in the number of participants in tours organized under that system. Aside from this, the growing desire of Americans to see the wonders of their land is also an important factor in advancing this healthy sentiment in favor of travel.

This season's tours to California will be conducted in all respects as those of preceding years, and will leave New York and Philadelphia February 12 and March 11, 1896. On the first tour a stop will be made at New Orleans for the Mardi-Gras festivities, and four weeks will be allowed in California. On the second tour four and one-half weeks will be allowed in California.

In addition to the tours to the Golden Gate, a series of tours to Jacksonville has been arranged. The tours will leave New York and Philadelphia January 28, February 4, 11, 18, and 25, and March 3, 1896, and allow two weeks stay in the "Land of Flowers."

Detailed itineraries of these tours will be sent on application to Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, New York, or Room 411, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

Death of Robert Chadwick.

Robert Earl, adopted son of Freeman and Martha Chadwick, after an illness of only nine days of typhoid fever, passed from death into life, aged 18 years, 6 months, and 27 days. Bobby, as he was familiarly known by his friends, was a genial whole-souled boy, honest and truthful, ever obedient and obliging. He will be sadly missed in the home and neighborhood, where he was loved and respected by all. Our loss is his gain. We can only say "The Lord gave and the Lord has taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord. M. C.

Winter Excursion Tickets on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

On November 1 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company placed on sale at its principal ticket offices excursion tickets to all prominent winter resorts in New Jersey, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Cuba. The tickets are sold at the usual low rates.

The magnificent facilities of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with its many connections, make this the favorite line for winter travel.

An illustrated book, descriptive of winter resorts, and giving routes of travel and rates for tickets will be furnished free on application to ticket agents.

Obituary.

I have been requested to correct the death notice of Mrs. Betsy Davis late of Farmer's Valley, and write a few lines for your paper with your permission.

Miss Betsy Walker was born in Steuben county, New York, July 22, 1814, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ruben Hooker, Oct. 24, 1895, aged 81 years, 3 months and seven days.

In [illegible] she was married to Mr. Curtis, five children were the fruits of this union, all of which with the husband have passed away. In 1849 she again married a Mr. Davis and soon moved to the farm where her daughter now lives. To this union were born four children, two sons and two daughters, all of them still alive. Her second husband died some years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis were converted and joined the M. E. church about twenty-five years ago.

She lived to a ripe old age, her strength was remarkable and her vision and memory were good. Her last sickness was pneumonia, and because of her advanced age she lasted only a few days. She passed away assuring her friends that all was well.

The funeral services were held from the house as she had requested, Rev. W. A. Bennett officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the old burial place at Goodwin's to await the resurrection morn.

Notice.

Came to the premises of the undersigned last Sunday night a dark bay horse. He has a ring bone on one hind foot and white star in forehead. The owner is requested to come forward and claim property and pay charges

Communicated.

If Smethport has a pound and a poundmaster, the cows that rove over people's lawns ought to be confined therein. It is contrary to law to permit cattle, horses, mules, etc., to run at large within the borough limits, and the owners of such animals are liable for all damage done by them. It is an outrage that citizens' lawns and shrubbery must be destroyed by trespassing animals.

The boys who roam the streets of Smethport at night breaking windows and making night hideous, have about exhausted the patience of our people. They are being watched and some of them are known and they are likely to be in jail much sooner than they imagine.

A much needed sewer is being constructed on Marvin street, from King to Water. The condition of this street has been a public nuisance for some time. Byron Street, the next one west of Marvin, also needs a sewer badly. The conditions in that locality are a menance to public health.

A prominent citizen of West Main street has banked up his house with rotten barnyard manure as a protection against the frosts of the coming winter. The Board of Health ought to be looking about many places in this borough before winter closes in. CITIZEN.

THE NAME OF THE NEXT

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

WILL BE ANNOUNCED IN

THE NEW YORK WEEKLY TRIBUNE,

OF NOVEMBER 4th, 1896.

Public interest will steadily increase, and the disappointment of the men whose votes turned the scale at the last election, with the results under the administration they elected, will make the campaign the most intensely exciting in the history of the country.

The New York Weekly Tribune.

the leading Republican family newspaper of the United States, will publish all the political news of the day, interesting to every American citizen regardless of party affiliations.

Also general news in attractive form, foreign correspondence covering the news of the world, an agricultural department second to none in the country, market reports which are recognized authority, fascinating short stories, complete in each number, the cream of the humorous papers, foreign and domestic, with their best comic pictures, fashion plates and elaborate descriptions of women's attire, with a varied and attractive department of household interest. The "New York Weekly Tribune" is an ideal family paper, with a circulation larger than that of any other weekly publication in the country issued from the office of a daily. Large changes are being made in its details, tending to give it greater life and variety, and especially more interesting to the women and young people of the household.

A SPECIAL CONTRACT enables us to offer this splendid journal and "The Miner" for Chinese Calendar.

The Chinese have a singularly complicated calendar. Their cycles have 60 years, each year, month and day having its own name, and by combining these the day, month and year are designated.

Life is made up not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindness and small obligations given habitually are what preserve the heart and secure comfort.—Sir H. Davy.

It is only by labor that thought can be made healthy, and only by thought that labor can be made happy, and the two cannot be separated with impunity.—Ruskin.

The judge, the renowned Miss New Solomon, sat dignified in her seat of honor. Her decisions were famed the world over for clearness and justice. Great nations submitted their disputes to her for arbitrament and were pleased to learn from her the truth of their positions. That she should sit dignified was therefore not to be wondered at, but there was perplexity in her countenance now. There was a case before her the like of which never had been known since her great namesake sat in judgment over two women who contended for a baby. In all her lawbooks, in all her experience, there was no suggestion of precedents for such a case as this.

As the matter stood to a casual observer it was this: Mr. George Wheelking, a beautiful mustached young man, dressed in gray knickerbockers, dark red sweater, brown and yellow golfing stockings and improved wheeling shoes, claimed that he was the sole and only owner of a fine silver and gold plated bicycle that was in the court for her honor to look at.

But there was another claimant, a young man just as beautifully mustached as Mr. Wheelking and quite as handsome otherwise, who appeared in brown corduroy knickerbockers, gray sweater, yellow and red golfing stockings and quite as improved shoes. This claimant was Mr. William Bikking.

Neither had witnesses, and so the learned judge questioned them and cross questioned them, but each seemed equally truthful, and the judge paused nonplused for the first time since she had sat in that high seat. Finally she arose from her chair and ordered the courtroom seats stacked around the sides. The audience was sent to the galleries, where it waited with breathless interest as the brawny court attendants carried out the judge's orders. The reporters were not disturbed, being inside the rail, and only the swish of the pencils broke the silence as the judge turned to Mr. Wheelking and said:

"Take that wheel, sir, and ride the best you know how." And the judge sat down and busied herself taking the hairpins out of her hair and then putting them back again.

Mr. Wheelking blushed very prettily as he gave his very baggy knickerbockers a twitch and prepared to mount. As gracefully as a bird he rose and settled in the saddle and began to ride. There was not a woman there whose heart did not jump. The men, of course, tried to see a fault, but even they could not help noticing that Mr. Wheelking seemed to fit the wheel exactly. A look flitting across the judge's face as of a smile was translated by one of the reporters as an indication that the decision was going in favor of the rider, and she sent out a full report of a decision then and there for the newsgathering organization of the city.

Mr. Wheelking rode in and around the massive pillars, backward, forward, turning all the beautiful figures, and in all the ways that pretty riders know how. The flitter on Judge New Soloman's mouth became a smile. As Mr. Wheelking dismounted Mr. Bikking came daintily forward, and as airily as a falling leaf landed in the saddle and began to ride. The applause that followed Mr. Wheelking's performance died away in wonderment.

When the reporter saw Mr. Bikking riding as gracefully as Mr. Wheelking, she gazed into the judge's face and saw there, instead of a decisive smile, a look of surprise, followed by the same old look of perplexity, whereupon she reached wildly for the nearest telegraph operator, and the recipients of the association's reports took out several columns of interesting matter and announced that the case was still under consideration.

When Mr. Bikking dismounted, the critics could point out no difference between the riding of the two graceful young men, and the judge looked as if she would like to have a good cry, but she bit her lips and restrained herself.

Here was a case that needed a measure entirely different from the usual method of deciding such things, and the judge determined to decide it according to masculine human nature as she understood it. So she stood up, and with a wave of her hand that silenced even the whisperings of gossiping men, she spoke in measured tones and syllables:

"Thus does this court decide. Listen, that you may distinctly hear. Rather than render a decision unworthy of this court, or fail to render one in any case, I do declare that the bicycle in question shall be bestowed on Miss Laura Bloomer unteeteredly."

Mr Wheelking turned to leave the court, giving Mr. Bikking a look that said plainly, "Anyhow you won't have it," while Mr. Bikking burst into tears.

At this the judge rose up, and in a voice that echoed through the courtroom said:

"Decision withdrawn, for it is plain to see now that the wheel belongs to Mr. Bikking. Poor fellow, take it!"—New York Sun.

Dr. Collyer's Appetite.

The Rev. Robert Collyer, while at the breakfast table of one of his friends in the country near Boston, was asked by one of the family, "Mr. Collyer, do you enjoy as good an appetite as you have in years past?" To which he replied, "My dear, if I lose the appetite I now have I hope no poor man will find it."

THE HAUNTED KITCHEN.

Terrible Fright of a Belated Cook and Her Precipitate Flight.

Out in the neighborhood of Iowa circle lives a government clerk who has grown gray in the services of his country, and with his gray hairs have gradually crept up in him several ills that flesh is heir to, among others an occasional touch of insomnia. Insomnia breeds irritability, and his irritability had been stirred to its lowest depths by inability to get a satisfactory hired girl, but a month or so ago he was fortunate enough to get a "settled woman," who was pretty near perfection. She was a good cook, staid in nights except when her "s'ciety" met, and in other ways was a model. About once a month the oblong piece of buff colored paper that was slipped under the basement door by the gasman would bring a frown to Mr. ——'s brow, but he would only caution the hired girl to turn down the gas when not using it. A few nights ago a "s'ciety" meeting had called the girl out before she finished washing the dinner dishes, and she hadn't returned when the family retired for the night.

Mr. —— had a protracted interview with his enemy, the sleep killer, the same night and could find no rest. In vain he thought over all his misdeeds and counted 100 backward and forward several times. Sleep wouldn't come, so, after tossing about until long after midnight, he finally got up and sat at the window. Happening to look down into the yard, he saw a streak of light glinting from the basement shutters, and he thought of burglars. Creeping stealthily down the stairs, he heard dishes, so he went back up to his room. Then he got mad at this wanton waste of gas, and going to the speaking tube yelled, "Put out that gas and go to bed!" It was the first time there had been an occasion to use the tube since the new girl came, and she hadn't been introduced to it before.

A smothered exclamation in the kitchen, the noise of a chair knocked over and pans rattling to the floor were followed by a scurrying up stairs, three steps at a time, and the badly scared colored woman gathered her few belongings in her room and made a rush for the front door. Mr. —— tried to intercept her, but she was thoroughly frightened and wouldn't stop. "Lemme go, boss; lemme go. I wouldn't work heah any mo' fer all the money in the treasury. I was washin the dishes down stairs jes' now and a loud voice come right through the tin pan I was jes' hangin' up, and it said, 'Put out dat gas and go to h—!' I know this house is haunted, and I wouldn't work heah any mo' for nuffin." And she wouldn't. The next evening in the "want" column of The Star was an ad. for a settled colored woman to do housework up at some hundred and something Thirteenth street.—Washington Star.

A MONSTER BOOK.

The Largest One In the World In the British Museum.

The Chinese department of the British museum library contains, says a writer in Cassell's "World of Wonders," a single work which occupies no fewer than 5,020 volumes. This wonderful production of the Chinese press was purchased a few years ago for $6,000 and is one of only a very small number of copies now in existence. It is an encyclopedia of the literature of China, covering a period of 28 centuries—from 1000 B. C. to 1700 A. D.

It owes its origin to the literary proclivities of the Emperor Kang-he, who reigned from 1662 to 1722. In the course of his studies of the ancient literature of his country Kang-he discovered that extensive corruptions had been allowed to creep into modern editions, and he conceived the idea of having the text of the originals reproduced and preserved in an authoritative form. This was a mighty conception truly, and in its execution it remains unique down to the present time. For the purpose of carrying out the work, Kang-he appointed a commission of learned men to select the writings to be reproduced and employed the Jesuit missionaries to cast copper types with which to execute the printing.

The commission was occupied for 40 years in its great task. Before the work was completed Kang-he died, but he had provided that his successor should see the book completed, and he faithfully carried out his trust. The book is arranged in six divisions, each dealing with a particular branch of knowledge. The divisions are thus designated: First, writings relating to the heavens; second, writings relating to the earth; third, writings relating to mankind; fourth, writings relating to inanimate nature; fifth, writings relating to philosophy; sixth, writings relating to political economy.

Longevity of Ants.

Sir John Lubbock, the naturalist, who has done more to popularize the study of insect ways and habits than all the other modern entomologists combined, has been experimenting to find out how long the common ant would live if kept out of harm's way. On Aug. 8, 1888, an ant which had been thus kept and tenderly cared for died at the age of 15 years, which is the greatest age any species of insect has yet been known to attain. Another individual of the same species of ant (Formica fusca) lived to the advanced age of 13 years, and the queen of another kind (Lasius niger) laid fertile eggs after she had passed the age of 9 years.—St. Louis Republic.

The Devil's Cap.

In mediæval dramas the part of the devil was always played in a pointed red cap, with two side points or tassels. So much importance was attached to this cap that on one occasion, in France, an actor refused to play, and the entertainment was postponed because his "devil's cap" had been stolen and it was impossible to play the part of satan without a proper headpiece.

SIMON & DOERR,

ELDRED, PA.

Bottlers & Carbonators.

Rochester, Bohemian Export Lager and Pure Native Wines for Family Use.

SIMON & DOERR,

Many cases of so called heart disease, are only cases of acid fermentation in the stomach. The irritation from the acid hinders the action of the heart, through the pneumogastric nerve, and very often the excessive restraining power of this peculiarly acting nerve, becomes a very serious matter; the heart makes the greatest effort to do its work, but there is a shortness of breath which cannot be made up for, and the feeling throughout the chest is very distressing. Sometimes this acid arises and causes an acrid smarting in the throat; at other times the burning is up and down the chest.

Another stomach trouble is that form of dyspepsia which gives pain after eating. Persons with this disease seem to have but a scant measure of nerve strength; when food is being digested, the stomach needs the concentration of all of the nerve and brain force, and if reading or close thought is attempted soon after eating, the stomach commences that intolerable aching which dyspeptics dread so much, when, the only immediate relief appears to be to stop the mental activity and get up and move around. In such cases there is evidently for the time being, too little nerve power to divide between the stomach and the brain; each one alone needs it all to enable it to perform its labor.

There are two properties possessed by Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic, which constitute it a cure for all of the above derangements. One, is its power of purifying and sweetening the stomach and stopping the formation of gas and acid; the other is the giving of increased nerve action and strength. Soon, with better digestion and better nutrition, there is a general renewal of life and health. The mind of a business man, under its use, soon become clearer and more active, thoughts come easier and are more clearly expressed, the memory is stronger, business plans and ventures are arranged in a better manner and are more patiently and successfully carried out, and details are attended to better, because of the increased strength of both mind and muscle.

Women having the care of a household on their minds, find Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic to be a great blessing; it gives better digestion, better nutrition, more strength, cures that feeling of weariness in the morning, that anxiety of mind, that fear that something is going wrong or that something bad is going to happen; cures dizziness, shortness of breath, pressure through the chest; belching of wind, rumbling in the bowels, heartburn, and all forms of dyspepsia that come from weakness.

Mrs. Ellen Pierce, of Borie, Potter Co., Pa., writes: "I can truthfully say that I owe my life to your stomach and nerve tonic; I was troubled with my stomach for over a year and tried everything I could hear of, but did not get any benefit. I was nearly in despair, for although I had only four in my family, I could not begin to do the work for them; an anxious friend wrote me to try Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic, and I did; I did not expect to ever get any better, but was greatly relieved on taking the first dose and now after taking only one bottle of your remedy I can do my work and my stomach does not hurt me only when I do very heavy work; I shall continue its use until I am entirely cured, for I am perfectly satisfied that it will cure all such stomach trouble. I thank you dear Doctor, a thousand times over, for putting before the public such a wonderful remedy for human suffering."

Mrs. Albert Herman, of 2305 Fifth Ave., Altoona, Pa., writes: "Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic has done me a power of good; that burning after meals has left me; I have always been so nervous that I would take nervous spells so bad sometimes that I would have to send for the doctor, but have not had one since I commenced using your stomach and nerve tonic."

H. C. Beatty, Barkeyville, Pa., says: "For years I had a severe pain in my stomach after meals; one bottle of Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic cured me; I think permanently."

J. C. Fulton, of Burgettstown, Pa., writes, "I have been afflicted with the rheumatism and was laid up in bed a good part of the time; my stomach was in a bad condition and would not retain food. I began to use Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic it not only helped my stomach but relieved me of the rheumatism and also increased my weight wonderfully."
